A loveable lion says:
"Welcome to the 2006 FIFA* World Cup in Germany."

For the second time in history Germany will open its doors for a great football tournament. It will be the place where people from all over the world will be welcomed by friends. The striking slogan of the organizers is: Die Welt zu Gast bei Freunden.

There was and still is a lot of work to do. Stadiums were built, accommodation and transportation had to be improved. And the FIFA had to find a symbol or mascot for this important event. So Goleo, a loveable lion, was created as the official mascot of the 2006 FIFA World Cup. This smart lion appears for example on covers of magazines, in shop windows and on screens. He is alive, talks and thinks. He combines the looks of Lothar Matthäus, the elegance of Diego Maradona and the all-round ability of Oliver Bierhoff - so the brash young lion says of himself in his first interview with a wink and a grin. And naturally he has his own opinions. Goleo has set himself one major task: He wants the Cup to be a huge, joyful and unforgettable party. As the "King of Parties" he will spend his time celebrating, singing and dancing with fans from all over the world for four whole weeks. Just now he is even producing a CD.

Goleo's constant companion is Pille, the talking football. The ball wants to serve as an object of desire for 22 football artists - even if they kick him for 90 minutes.

Pille and Goleo are an unequal pair. Pille is a right chatterbox who wears his heart on his sleeve. He has to accept the fact that Goleo tends to steal the limelight most of the time. But the lion is a good pal and allows his friend to be a star now and then. Both share their interest in the Football Cup as the "biggest party of the world". So they are the ideal candidates to represent the FIFA WORLD CUP.

The football mag: Kicker Reader's Corner

Is football really an ancient game?
 Peter, 11 yrs.

Yes, that's true. Did you know that it was played in China more than 2000 years ago? A similar game called "Tsu Chu" ("Kick the Ball") existed there. Bamboo poles served as goals. And around 400 BC in Greece, where ball games were an essential part of life, they also played a form of football. They called it "Pheninda" – kicking, running and handling the ball.

An English-speaking guest in your family

There is a big sports event for young people in your town and one of the guests stays with your family during that time.

Guest: Hallo, my name is John. Are you my host family for the next few days?

1. Bejahen und begrüßen Sie Ihren Gast, stellen Sie sich kurz vor und fragen Sie ihn, wie es ihm geht.

John: I'm fine, thanks. Nice to meet you, too.

2. Fragen Sie Ihren Gesprächspartner, wie seine Reise nach Deutschland war.

John: The bus trip was OK, but it was a bit too long.

3. Schlagen Sie vor, gemeinsam eine Tasse Tee zu trinken.

John: Thank you, that's a good idea. But could I have a cold drink instead, please.

4. Bieten Sie Ihrem Gast ein Glas Orangensaft an und fragen Sie, ob er auch etwas essen möchte.

John: No, thanks. I've had some sandwiches on the bus and I'm not hungry at the moment, only a bit tired.

5. Sagen Sie Ihrem Gast, dass Sie ihm jetzt sein Zimmer zeigen werden, wo er sich dann ausruhen kann.

John: That's very nice of you, thank you.

6. Erkundigen Sie sich, ob Ihr Gast noch Fragen hat.

John: Everything is just fine, thank you so much.

7. Wünschen Sie Ihrem Gast einen angenehmen Aufenthalt.
